BEYOND THE TRADITIONAL

Flowers set the stage for your wedding day. Through their own language your floral arrangements express not only the love you and your partner share, but also your individual qualities and traits. Your bouquet is the centrepiece of that expression, therefore, it should be as unique and special as you.

Consider using untraditional elements and materials to create a singular design. Replacing leaves with decorative wire as a framing device can produce a beautiful play of light, air, and colour. The result could be a structured, modern form or a softer, rounded, whimsical shape. Decorative wire can even be woven to match the lace in your dress. Crystals and gemstones, metal, wool, fabric, and paper will add impact and dimension to your favourite flowers.

Greenery can be also be incorporated in unique ways. Leaves can be strung with beads or braided together to fashion natural ribbons to wrap the bouquet. Alternately, leaves can be woven together to create a basket supporting the flowers.

Inspired by waterfalls and nature, a cascading bouquet is a stunning way to mix materials—leaf braids, ribbons, beads, wire—and distinctive blooms such as orchids or calla lilies. The cascade can be created from free-flowing strands tied to a hand-held ring. Or it can be assembled around a structured, filigree frame constructed from decorative wire.

An armature makes a signature statement. Wrapping a lacy band of decorative wire from the hand, over the wrist, and up the arm makes the bouquet an integral part of your attire.

The flowers for your wedding day deserve the same careful attention you do. As a concept design studio, Kaas Floral Design brings inspiration and innovation to the planning of your day. Using your budget and preferred flowers, we help you create a magical look that expresses the beauty of your love and commitment.
